

ARCHIVE EDITION

There's plenty more links and features where this came from on the cover page.

COUDAL PARTNERS

The best Visual Illusion Contest of 2007. Two identical images of the Leaning Tower of Pisa are presented, one near the other, what our viewing system 'see' is that the image on the right leans more. What this illusion reveals is less to do with perspective, but how the visual system tends to treat two side-by-side images as if part of the same scene. Via Bad Science. -vp.05.21.07

Creative license. Take as much as you want with Adobe® Creative Suite® 3